How can I show that if the eigenvalues of a diagonalizable matrix are distinct, then the matrix is also diagonalizable? A: Suppose SAS is a diagonalizable matrix with distinct eigenvalues. Then the eigenvalues of SAS are also distinct. Since the rank of the matrix is equal to the number of eigenvalues (and also the dimension), then the rank is equal to the number of the diagonals of the matrix. If you don't know about diagonalizable matrix, do look at the definition: Definition. A matrix SAS is diagonalizable if there exists an invertible matrix SPS such that $SPA = D$$ where $SD$$ is a diagonal matrix. If the matrix is diagonalizable, then the number of diagonals should be equal to the number of the eigenvalues of the matrix. We already have the eigenvalues of the matrix, but we also want to "see" the diagonals, which can be done by choosing a matrix SPS and multiplying SAS by SPS . Q: Package android.hardware.camera2 throws error - cannot be resolved or is not a field Whenever i am trying to access the Camera2 class i get an error - cannot be resolved or is not a field A: This is because the Camera2 class is not yet available. It has not yet been released. See the Android API notes for what's new in the camera2 framework: To get the raw input frame data and thus use the camera2 API, you should use the new android.hardware.camera2.CameraDevice API. For existing apps, you can use CameraX to get an alternative API that is compatible with the camera2 API.
