The kinetics of the lactate dehydrogenase-catalyzed reaction of D-lactate to D-lactate 1-phosphate were determined with respect to pH, pK and concentration of D-lactate. The data were fitted to the Michaelis-Menten equation and the kinetic parameters calculated. The efficiency of lactate dehydrogenase in this reaction was determined to be at least one million-fold greater than previously reported. The data were used in the calculation of the steady state and rate equations of the reaction. The rate equation was used to estimate the rate of phosphorylation of D-lactate by lactate dehydrogenase in situ in cells growing in continuous culture. It was estimated that the rate of D-lactate phosphorylation is considerably greater than the rate of D-lactate transport into the cell by lactate transport systems.Feral Interactive have posted a new trailer for the upcoming release of DayZ, showing off what the game will be like at launch, with a full day and night cycle.
