The Missouri River is the northern boundary for the U.S. states of Nebraska and Iowa. The Missouri River is generally shallow with depths averaging four feet (1.22 m) to six feet (1.83 m) deep in the center of the river. The MRGOM, in turn, empties into the Gulf of Mexico. Geography Geology The Missouri River is a tributary of the Mississippi River and is formed as a result of many geologic events. Lake Oahe is a dam located above the Missouri River and is situated on the Missouri River. The crest of the Missouri River is 21 meters (69.23 ft) lower than the average for the Mississippi River due to the damming. The Sioux considered their enemy, the Crow, to be the source of the name. The Crow called the river Hi-datsa or Hototsa. The name was given to the river because of what they believed to be the "outrageous cruelty" or "monstrous behavior" of the Crow. The Blackfoot call it Kokde-aname (Kok-de-anam-ee), meaning '
